

WALKED MILES IN PAJAMAS

Insane Sobo Bagdam Escapes from Hospital and Wanders for Hours Through Brooklyn Streets in Early Morning.

Bagdam, an insane Austrian immigrant detained in the Long Island College Hospital, wearing a nightgown and slippers, escaped from his keepers about daylight today, clad only in his pajamas, and created considerable excitement in Brooklyn by appearing like a specter at various points.

Bagdam's room in the hospital was on the first floor. An orderly had been detailed to watch him through the night, as he was afflicted with suicidal mania and it was feared he would try to kill himself. While the orderly was temporarily away Bagdam leaped from the window of the room. He landed in a snow bank and was not injured.

When the orderly got back he found the window open and ran out in the hope of overtaking the insane man. He was able to follow Bagdam's tracks in the snow a short way. Then they were lost in other tracks and the orderly was forced to return to the hospital.

About 5.30 o'clock the Brooklyn police received a telephone message from Cyrus Rhinola, a liverman at No. 73 Liberty street, who reported that a lunatic had invaded his place. According to Rhinola the insane man had stalked into his stable, where a German hostler was at work, and almost frightened the man to death by standing and staring at him.

A wagon load of policemen was sent to the stable, but by the time it got there the crazy man had left.

An hour later, Policeman Mike Lynch, while passing near Fulton Ferry, saw a white apparition dodging about Jewell's wharf.

He rubbed his eyes. "Am I after seeing a ghost?" he said.

Lynch followed after the white figure. It led him toward the river and a great light broke upon the policeman. "It's a daffy man after committing suicide," he said.

A couple of long strides brought him close to the apparition. It proved to be Bagdam. The man seemed bent upon throwing himself into the river.

The policeman held him until an ambulance arrived from the hospital. Bagdam was insane when he arrived in this country a few days ago. He will be sent back to Austria as soon as his condition will permit.
